Singers

Every voice possesses its own peculiar colour, its own trajectory, its own appetite. Do not blend the voices into uniformity: let them collide, shimmer, and delight in their incompatibility.

The scoring and dynamics assume 16 singers, two to each stave. The minimum viable ensemble required to realise all divisi is 11 singers (four sopranos, two altos, two tenors and three basses).

Vibrato and portamento are occasionally indicated, but their use is not restricted to those passages. Expressive portamenti should be distinguished from the continuous, deliberate glissandi at Figure D and in the closing bars.

The tangerine should taste indecently vivid.

Piano

The piano part is optional. An a cappella performance is preferred, provided the choir can sustain the harmonic structure without instrumental support.

The piano part in the version of this song for solo mezzo-soprano and instrumental ensemble (clarinet, saxophone, piano, viola and double bass) differs substantially from the piano part printed here.

Damper pedal markings indicate specific points of use, but the pedal may be employed elsewhere at the pianist's discretion. Una corda should be used only where indicated.

Occasional fingerings are provided as suggestions; the pianist may substitute alternatives as appropriate.
